

2015 | Alaska UAS Interest Group Annual Meeting

Don't miss it! This year's meeting is special for several reasons. It coincides with the U.S. assuming chairmanship of the Arctic Council from April 2015 to April 2017. It is in Fairbanks, home to the Alaska Center for Unmanned Aircraft Systems Integration and world renowned arctic research at the University of Alaska Fairbanks.

September 1 Arctic theme with key federal, state, and native leaders, the emerging commercial UAS industry in Alaska, and sea ice, sea otter, walrus, and oil spill research missions in addition to hearing from our global partners.

September 2 Lead military and state officials will open the day and be followed by top national UAS corporations at the forefront of the industry covering UAS traffic management systems, large UAS in environmental science, emergency response, tethered balloon operations in the Arctic, and precision integrated programs for UAS.

September 3 Lead officials from the FAA and Center of Excellence on UAS will open the meeting followed by policy and UAS management presentations including a panel discussion by the FAA's six test sites. Two tracks will follow in the afternoon: A. Continuing UAS technical presentations. B. Alaska's Unmanned Aircraft Systems Legislative Task Force.
